

How Similucia Started

Once long ago in Similucia stood a tree that the God Sim had planted. The leaves started to fall off. There were more than 800,000 leaves. They all swept away near the dead spots of the world. After six years all the leaves had grown into people. The dead spots had grown healthy and plants were sprouting out of the now soft ground. These plants were used as clothes.

8 years later the people in Similucia discovered a purple tree. They guessed that this was planted by Sim's brother Bruten. The people looked after it well and soon enough the leaves turned into plants that were fully grown and out of the bark came lots of animals.

They soon found a purple poison pool. They drained it in a bowl that they had made out of leaves. They put magic WayWong (unicorn like things) in the purple poison and quick as a flash it turned a vivid green. Nobody wanted to drink it because it looked yuck but all the plants were dying and everything was turning brown. Somebody had to do it! Then the brave Clark Simil stood up and drank it. He became stronger and got longer arms. The people were happy because they needed this. From this day it became a daily drink.

They then made tools out of the things they had, with having long arms and being strong it was easy to rip and pull stuff. They made tools such as bamboo cutters, paint brushes and sticky stuff like glue. The people of Similucia were happy. From then on they found other places and got stuff to trade.
